Progress on Railway Bridge. Rapid progress continues to be made on the new railway bridge over the river, and a fair idea of how the structure will appear when completed can now be obtained from the work done. Within the past ten days another span of the steel work has been completed, making four spans finished, and the parts of the fifth span are being placed in position and bolted and riveted together. This work is all at the Washington end of the bridge, but preparations to start the steel work at the Verginia end are in progress. But little work remains to be done on the big trestle that will form the approach to the bridge from the tracks in Virginfa, and as soon as temporary tracks can be laid on it, and the cars of material be shoved out upon it, the stee work, it is stated, will be commenced. The false work, which forms the temporary support of the iron structure while being put length of the bridge. Temporary tracks which are to be run upon the Virginia approach trestle, are now being laid by the trackmen. The entire bridge, exclusive of the draw-span, is eleven spans long, and, as stated, about four and a half spans are completed. On the approach at the Washington end the work is also being pushed, and the big stone piers over which the tracks come into Washington are in various stages of completion. It now looks as if the iron work and the approaches will be completed at about the same time.

High School Graduate Honored. Mr. Herbert Hayden, who graduated in last year's class at the Western High School, and is now a cadet in the third class at the United States Military Academy at West Point, is one of the fortunate "yearlings," having been appointed corporal for excellence in drills and studies. This honor is about equal in a cadet's eyes to that of a major general's position in later life. Mr. Hayden's roommate, Fred Creese, who also has many friends in this city, won the same honor. The latter is a son of Major Creese of the army, and the former of Lieutenant Commander Hayden of the navy.

Building a Wharf. Mr. Harry Bliss of this city, who owns a farm on the Potomac river near Bryan's Point, Md., is having a small wharf and boat house built on his property to shelter the launch owned by Mr. Bliss. Like other buildings on the property, the boat house will be an ornamental building and will add much to the appearance of the river shore about the Bryan's Point station of the fish commission.
